RECEPTION AND DETENTION FACILITIES FOR BOYS

This institution has undergone a most harrowing year due to the fact that daily average population has increased from 144 inmates for the previous year to 170 inmates this fiscal year. A new high of 210 boys was reached at one particular period. The quality of food, due to lack of sufficient funds decreased, medical personnel and services were acutely hampered, incidents of sick leave among staff members increased sharply as a result of excessive overtime. This in turn resulted in less efficient work due to the long work week for staff members.

Threats of assault on staff members and inmates by other inmates showed marked increase and became a major problem to the administration and staff of the institution. In June 1964, as a result of conditions at the institution, the Boston Herald placed a reporter under an assumed name as a volunteer worker at the institution with the purpose of observing conditions. As a result articles appeared on the front page of the Boston Herald for one week informing the public of the disastrous conditions at the institution due to overcrowding, understaffing, and lack of sufficient money in major accounts. The reporter pointed out in the Boston Herald that the work on the part of the administration and staff was amazingly excellent under the existing conditions.

However, it went on to warn that unless major changes were made to meet the needs of the institution, a complete breakdown of institution staff in the handling of inmates was imminent.

As mentioned in previous reports, it is again important to stress the fact that if it were not for loyal staff members willing to work long hours of overtime, the institution program would have collapsed completely during periods of critical overcrowdedness.

Under overcrowded conditions, the staff have no opportunity to provide individual attention or counseling. The custodial staff must assign top priority to security measures. In this capacity they are little more than guards. Positions allocated to work with groups of twenty boys, now are assigned fifty to seven-five children. Recreation areas, constructed for twenty-five boys, have fifty boys and little in the way of organized, supervised activity can be introduced. Close supervision so necessary for this type of child, is impossible; the supervisor is responsible for too many children. Consequently, many of things we had hoped to overcome in the child are perpetuated or strengthened, e.g., gang formation, group tension, intragroup assaults. In this instance we defeat the purpose of our existence. The safety hazard must be considered. Accidents due to inadequate supervision can be expected. Also, considering the type of child present, the possibility of mass escape, riot, or assault on staff cannot be overlooked.

The Reception Centers are the diagnostic facilities of the Division of Youth Service. As such, they are charged with providing the Youth Service Board with a complete diagnostic evaluation of each child to be seen by the Board. Due to overcrowded conditions, the quality of this service has been most difficult to maintain. Observational data, so vital to the study, is of minimal value. The supervisory staff have so many children in their care they do not have the opportunity to observe the child as much as is needed to make a contribution to our knowledge of the child. The children they know best are the acting out, more difficult youngsters whose misbehavior brings them to the attention of the staff for management purposes. The passive, withdrawn or conforming child is inconspicuous in the group, lost in the crowd. This situation leads to more acting out on the part of children than is visual since they feel a need for attention so strongly that they will misbehave actively if this is the only means of receiving attention. We know many of our children committed their delinquent acts in the community for the same reason and here again, we reinforce, rather than extinguish the behavioral pattern.

The identity of the Detention Center has all but ceased to exist as a separate identity. During this fiscal year, 118 cases were accepted for clinical evaluation by this clinic from thirty-four Juvenile and District Courts. In October of 1963, the Detention Clinic was completely closed by the Director of the Division of Youth Service by reason of overpopulation. The clinic remained closed for several weeks with intake limited to homicides and those approved by the Director.

In January of 1964, the clinic was reopened on a limited basis. The demand for clinical studies was markedly increased during the fiscal year and an analysis of the referrals indicates that the courts are becoming more selective in the referrals.

In spite of the problems faced as a result of overcrowding, the Reception and Detention Clinics functioned in as efficient manner as possible and our relationships with the courts and private agencies continues to be very compatible.

It is hoped that some means of alleviating the overcrowded conditions of the institution will be found. When this is achieved, we feel confident that we can carry on our service to youth in a more efficient and satisfactory manner.

Respectfully submitted,

Francis H Maloney

The Lyman School for Boys at Westborough

Annual Report for 1963-1964

John M. Borys, Superintendent

This is my final administrative report to the Director of the Division and the members of the Youth Service Board. I believe that the annual reports previously submitted since my appointment here on March 1 of 1957 have been clear and concise. I believe that my recommendations are still valid.

It is unfortunate that we have seen such an unprecedented number of commitments, and that the rise in commitments in turn have seriously affected the parole supervision of children in the community. These combined problems of increase in commitments and increase in parole failures have subjected this institution to excessive pressures in practically every area of the institution. There has been a considerable amount of disintegration within the structure of the institution as the result of the population pressure. This, of course, has been evident over the last several years, but the past fiscal year was unprecedented.

Lyman School has a well knit basic organization, including administrative policies, administrative, clinical, educational, and supervisory personnel, and an extensive physical plant to provide for one of the finest training schools in the United States. Once the population has been stabilized, I honestly feel that the institution can do an effective job in terms of rehabilitation. The process of rehabilitation has always been quite simple. This means that a total plan must be established for each child from the day he enters the institution. This involves a total coordination of institution facilities and community services long before a boy achieves parole. I am extremely pleased with the addition of the educational counselors to the Division of Youth Service, since this will immeasurably increase the consideration of community services for parolees.

I am indebted to the Director and the members of the Youth Service Board for their confidence in me over the years. I am also indebted to the many staff members at Lyman School, including many who have retired, for their faithful service in behalf of children. There have, of course, been many disagreements between myself as administrator, and the staff as employees, but I am also pleased that our differences of opinion were resolved in a manner which avoided the necessity for formal grievance procedures. They have all responded well to the stress and strain of the multitude of duties necessary in the operation of an institution which dealt with almost eight hundred boys. A word of acknowledgment is in order to my Secretary and Principal Clerk, Mabel Lundberg, who has been so patient during the many hours of dictation over the past seven years. She has served Lyman School faithfully, and she herself will be looking forward to retirement in November of 1964.

There are many things which remain incomplete at Lyman School, and the responsibility for this must remain with the Superintendent, regardless of the pressure which was existent and the shortness of hours available in which to accomplish these things. I hope that the Superintendent to-be will be able to bring a fresh approach to the institution, and to view the institution as being primarily established for service to children. I hope that the ancient days of considering the institution as a vacuum are long gone, and that the progressive work in the field of children's services will see a closer coordination between the training school and the community.

Respectfully submitted,

John M. Borys
Superintendent

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL FOR BOYS

John W. Hastings, Superintendent

I herewith submit my report for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1964.

As we opened this fiscal year our population was 245 and as we closed we had 241 boys. New commitments totaled 374, while 672 individuals were served during this period. Inasmuch as our facilities and program are designed for a working capacity of 225, we have been constantly faced with a situation of overcrowding which has seriously hampered our efforts and plans to further expand our services to the boys committed to our care.

It is important to note that we are receiving an ever increasing number of boys with severe emotional disorders who require special care and treatment which is not available in our institution at present. Our budget requests for the past few years included requests for additional Juvenile Training Counselors to at least partially meet this need. Our present complement of three counselors for approximately 250 boys, with a resultant caseload of 80+ for each counselor, is totally inadequate if we are to effectively carry on a meaningful and worthwhile counseling program.

Intensive and concentrated vocational courses continue to be available for boys in painting, cabinet making, automotive mechanics, machine shop, laundry, printing, bricklaying and masonry, electricity, barbering, carpentry, agriculture, landscaping, plumbing, cooking and baking. Although our students are constantly afforded opportunities for the practical application of their varied vocational skills because of the close correlation between shop and classroom instruction and related maintenance projects throughout the institution, we have recently undertaken, under the direction of John D. Coughlan, Director of the Division of Youth Service, the construction of a staff dwelling. All vocational shops will be involved in this most meaningful experience which, while providing students with practical experience, will, in addition, serve to at least partially relieve a staff housing shortage within the institution.

At this writing a long requested and vitally needed central cafeteria has become a reality with the start of construction of the new cafeteria and staff housing building adjacent to the Administration Building and Academic-Vocational Annex. It is expected this facility will be in operation in the late summer or early fall of 1965.

Other plant improvements started during the year include renovation of the central heating system, including the installation of new boilers in the main boiler plant and the modernization of the heating system in the various boys cottages and the Administration Building. We are grateful, indeed, to the members of the Legislature for their understanding and attention to these much needed additions and improvements.

Much remains to be done toward improving both facilities and program of the institution and our efforts will continue to be directed toward that end.

In conclusion, I wish to thank the members of the Youth Service Board, Dr. Cecelia McGovern, Thomas J. Turley, and especially John D. Coughlan, Chairman, for their assistance, understanding and encouragement during the past year and to acknowledge my indebtedness to the staff of the Industrial School for Boys for their loyalty, cooperation and unselfish devotion to duty.

RESIDENTIAL TREATMENT UNIT

Patrick J. Creeden, Superintendent

The fiscal year ending June 30, 1964 at the Residential Treatment Unit showed an increase of seven boys in our daily average number of boys for the year, which not only taxed our staff and facilities to the limit but also demonstrated the necessity of additional clerical assistance and a cottage supervisor.

The guiding philosophy of the psychiatric program continues to be oriented to the viewpoint that social environmental factors primarily contribute to the antisocial difficulties of our boys instead of primarily psychological factors.

Our Psychiatric Consultant continues to be what the title implies, and is not to be considered as therapist for any single child or group. He is an important professional member of the staff, serving as a supplementary resource on problems of diagnosis and management.

Medical care and treatment continue with two registered nurses providing care and treatment, as prescribed by the physician, for a wide variety of ailments and injuries.

Dental care was provided, as in the past, with the bulk of the dental work consisting of extractions and fillings.

Organized religious instructions continue for all boys on a weekly basis, in addition to attendance at regular weekly church services in the community.

The recreation and physical training program continues to be outstanding, with organized competitive games and sports both indoors and out-of-doors. Many special events during the year, such as picnics, cook-outs, entertainment parties, swimming, and fishing contributed to a well rounded program.

Recreation and physical training facilities, however, leave much to be desired. The gymnasium is an antiquated structure with a floor that is a definite hazard. In the fiscal appropriation funds were allotted to repair the floor, but there has been no action to date. The athletic field is a "dust bowl" and requires a complete resurfacing job and drainage system.

The physical structure and grounds were maintained in good operating condition, despite the antiquity of some of the present structures; however, it continues to be not only costly but increasingly difficult to maintain the existing old buildings.

I wish to acknowledge my appreciation to the loyal members of the staff who have cooperated with me in carrying out the program of the school.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Elizabeth Bode Van Waters, Supt.

The School's near capacity population throughout the past year reflects the continuing increase in the commitment of girls to the Youth Service Board. The School population decreases sharply in the summer, after the close of the academic year, but rises steadily throughout the fall, winter and spring, to full capacity.

As prevention programs accelerate in the community, and as additional guidance and treatment programs are available in the community, it is not surprising that only the most difficult and confirmed delinquents girls come to Lancaster. It is the Superintendent's conviction that, in the spectrum of treatment facilities for the juvenile delinquents, the training school with its controlled group residence and its specialized programs, continues to be an irreplaceable necessity. To justify its value, the operating philosophy and methods must be frequently reviewed and adapted to changing conditions.

Observable both at Lancaster and in the community is the increased symptomatic behavior evidenced in physical violence, and confusion about sexual identity. It is the responsibility of the school to make special provision in these areas. Firm, consistent controls and adequate supervision are essential. Equally important, and more positive, is the development of psychiatric, case work and program facilities which develop understanding and self control, and give healthy outlet and satisfaction.

Throughout the year we have been handicapped by difficulty in filling case work positions. Mrs. Parrish, a trained social worker, has counselled about sixty girls and Mrs. Tyler has counselled about forty. This is selected, but not full coverage.

In the area of academic education, about three quarters of the School have been enrolled in classes, some full and some part day. Added to the usual class room subjects, credits are given in Gym, Music, and Home Economics, the latter being taught in the six different cottage kitchens.

The occupational placement program includes, laundry, bakery, dental and hospital assistants, beauty shop and power sewing. In power sewing, 6400 different articles were made for four Youth Service Board institutions, including Lancaster. An additional occupation is the summer farm program, involving the use of about twenty acres of fertile land, growing twenty-seven different fruits and vegetables. Thirty-six tons of produce were harvested. As fresh surplus developed, it was shared with the Girls' Reception Center and other Training Schools. In addition, eight thousand pounds of frozen vegetables, and fruits were prepared for year round use, as well as one thousand cans of beets and tomatoes.

All in all, I believe that even lethargic youngsters can be motivated by meaningful occupations, directed by knowledgeable, interested adults, who believe in the value of what they are doing. The occupational program at Lancaster is not exclusively vocational, but it does give experience in work variety and requirements, as well as providing achievement satisfaction.

In setting up the leisure program at Lancaster, the staff, under the direction of Miss Donovan and Mrs. Mulroy, have successfully involved about ninety of our girls. Because it was not possible this year to fill the position of Physical Education Teacher with an experienced person, Miss Donovan, in addition to her duties as Supervisor of Training and Education, has coached Basketball, Baseball, Volleyball, Soccer, has been Life Guard and Swimming Instructor during the summer, has involved over sixty percent of the girls in the National Physical Fitness Program. Lancaster teams have exchanged games with about ten other school and church teams. Included in the physical activity this year has been ice skating, the cost of a rink having been met by a private donor. The physical activity program is carried out mostly on evenings and weekends. The program is climaxed in May, with a demonstration and the presentation of thirty trophies and six hundred award certificates. For girls who have not previously been on anyone's teams, or who have not previously achieved, these awards are important. Very meaningful to Lancaster girls is the interest shown in our program by the Sargent School of Physical Education, with whom we exchange games and demonstrations.

Music, directed by Mrs. Mulroy, assisted by Mrs. Maddocks, involves about a hundred girls a year in Choir and Glee Club, providing regular music for church and special music for the Christmas Pageant, May Festival and Graduation.

Five groups of Community volunteers, under Mrs. Mulroy's supervision enrich and diversify the leisure program. About fifty individuals participate both individually and in groups. Off grounds activities, camp-outs, cook-outs, skating parties, picnics are provided. Brought to Lancaster by the outside group, have been co-ed square dance parties, game evenings, family strawberry festivals, etc. The development of this program has been particularly helpful to the more withdrawn, isolated girls at the School. Its success is attributed to Mrs. Mulroy's judgment in selecting volunteers, and her skill in scheduling and supervising the program of events.

In the area of religion the average girl at Lancaster has had little strength or comfort. Each girl now here knows her Chaplain personally, and not only is here prepared for sacraments, and attends church, but has an opportunity to discuss with the Chaplain her religious confusions or uncertainties. The Church, more than any other agency, can provide both requirement and compassion for the troubled adolescent.

No girl at Lancaster improves because of the help of a single individual. Growth and improvement are achieved when each member of the School community makes an optimum contribution. No one of us could begin to meet the needs of any one girl. But each of us, with the help of each other, may have confidence that our work together contributes significantly to the betterment of our children.
